MONDAY EVENING, OCTOBER 20.

A FEMALE "DETECTIVE." -- Mrs. Tomlinson, who figured somewhat notoriously in Bridge port a year or so ago, in a shooting affray, in which she applied cold poison to her husband and then to herself, but without fatal results, was in Hartford on Saturday in the pretended disguise of a detective, and went to the prison at Wethersfield to interview Mrs. Alexander, the Bridgeport woman who was in the killing business at one time, and is now serving a life sentence.

Mrs. Tomlincon represented herself to be engaged in looking up evidence with reference to a large amount of property in which certain or-phans are interested. The mother of these children, in her last sickness, was attended by Mrs. Alexander, which fact is looked upon as a atrong presumption that death was not wholly due to natural causes. The "female detective," however, did not get the information she desired,

Mrs. Tomlinson is represented as being youthful and fresh-looking, or, in the descriptive parlance of the police officer who furnished her parlance of the police efficer who furnished her escort to the prison, is "as rugged as a hired man"—and is inclined to be very free and easy in her conversation. She gave a detailed account of her husband's successful effort; to secure a divorce from her on the ground of adultery, and said that she was drugged by a man employed to get evidence against her. That man is now in New York, and she have been considered. is now in New York, and she has her eye on him, and proposes to get even with him when a invorable opportunity effers. If she is what she pretends to be she must be considered a valuable addition to the detective force of the me-tropolis. Her qualifications would seem to be first class .- Hartford Conrant.
